Its Housefires III in 2016. Talking about writing the song, Barratt that is a reminder for us that we can develop our life in anything, we have the freedom to develop our life in what we want. Since its launch, the song has noticed in churches around the world, with adoration people who record their own versions, including Pasion, Michael W Smith and Soul Survivor. This followed at the launch of its two previous ones, which included the family anthem of the modern church, Good Good Father, launched in 2014. And the invitation of Jesus is to build our lives in the things that last. "It encourages us to eliminate everything that is. That is at the center of our lives, and puts Jesus in the middle, because he is the one who keeps everything together. Together.
